is what I'm trying to say.

SENATOR JONES: If they're an agent and handling, it still can be.

SENATOR SCHMITT: It would still be?

SENATOR JONES: Um-huh.

SENATOR SCHMITT: If they're an agent of him, depending on how it is registered at the court house, and these people are changing registrations so fast you can't keep up with them.

SENATOR JONES: Yes.

SENATOR SCHMITT: Just want this in the record.

SENATOR JONES: Well, yeah, and thank you. I'd like to carry something a little bit farther on this, too, being able to go ahead and construct. I sold ten acres to a person, and he's been waiting for the DEQ permit for six months. And if he couldn't have started building them buildings, the ground would have froze. In this state we've only got six months to build. And you know, the ground froze, they can't dig, and if you move it down south they can build year-round. So in that case, I think they should be able to go ahead and build the buildings, because a building is not permitted with DEQ. And a lot of them do have, mine has pits under them, but that water goes from that pit out to the lagoon, then it's DEQ's responsibility. The building itself is not DEQ's responsibility, or anything about that building. And so same way with a cattle operation, if they want to build a fence, if they want to trench a water line in before the ground freezes in the fall, so they can build on top of the ground afterwards, they can do that. But if we put this in so they have to have that permit before they even start the buildings, which DEQ don't have no control over, or to regulate, I don't think that's right. So I think that's an important issue that we should consider. Thank you.

PRESIDENT ROBAK: Thank you, Senator Jones. Senator Beutler, your light is next. You have spoken three times. There are no further lights. Would you like to close on the committee
